The relationship

Future Power Capital and Dealroom could create a complementary relationship between private capital and technology-driven market intelligence. Future Power Capital provides investment capital, investor relationships and access to opportunities across emerging businesses and innovative sectors, while Dealroom offers a global platform for discovering startups, tracking ecosystems and analysing companies, investors and funding activity.

A collaboration could help Future Power Capital identify high-potential businesses, emerging industries and relevant investment opportunities through Dealroom's market intelligence and ecosystem data. In parallel, Future Power Capital could bring investment opportunities, capital relationships and connections across the private investment community, creating additional value for Dealroom's network and market reach.

Over the longer term, the relationship could develop around startup sourcing, ecosystem research, investor introductions and selected investment opportunities. Combining Dealroom's visibility across the global startup landscape with Future Power Capital's capital and investment network could create a practical foundation for continued collaboration and access to new opportunities.

Areas of collaboration

- Global startup ecosystem visibility
- Funding and valuation intelligence
