The relationship

Future Power Capital and PitchBook represent complementary capabilities across the private capital ecosystem. Future Power Capital brings access to private capital, investment networks and opportunities across emerging companies, technology, real estate and other private-market assets. PitchBook provides institutional-grade private market data, research and technology supporting deal sourcing, due diligence, market intelligence and investment decision-making.

A strategic relationship between the two organizations could create opportunities to strengthen investment sourcing, market intelligence and access to relevant investors and companies. Future Power Capital could contribute capital relationships, investment opportunities and market connectivity, while PitchBook's data and research capabilities could support more informed identification and evaluation of potential investments.

The relationship, continued

Over the long term, the relationship could develop around shared market intelligence, deal flow, investor connectivity and selected co-investment opportunities, creating a practical framework for both organizations to expand their reach and participate more effectively in the evolving private capital markets.
